1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Amici respectfully submit that Proposition 8 both reflects and improperly codifies strongly 3 negative religious attitudes toward homosexuality and homosexuals not universally shared by all 4 faiths and denominations. Anti-gay religionists placed Proposition 8 on the ballot and financed the 5 campaign to deprive gay and lesbian Californians of a fundamental civil right – the right to marry. 6 Polling shows, moreover, a strong correlation between certain religious attitudes and the inclination 7 to vote for the reactionary measure. California should not be permitted to strip a disfavored minority 8 of a fundamental civil right by enacting its most powerful sects' religious doctrine as general law. 9 Proposition 8's Proponents suggest that homosexuals cannot possibly be a persecuted and 10 powerless minority because religious voices spoke both for, and against, Proposition 8. Their expert, 11 Professor Kenneth P. Miller, testified that the California Council of Churches opposed Proposition 8. 12 In fact, its lobbying arm, California Church IMPACT expended less than $3,000 on a ballot mailer 13 covering all the November 2008 propositions, and recommending a "No" vote on Proposition 8. 14 That some religious voices sought to "speak truth to power" on behalf of the disempowered 15 and oppressed only underscores the fact that America's largest and most powerful denominations 16 both condemn homosexuality, and provided the financial and logistical backing needed to enact their 17 doctrines in Proposition 8's ban on the same-sex marriages. Looking to the national denominational 18 bodies of America's 25 largest Christian denominations, only the General Synod of the United 19 Church of Christ spoke against Proposition 8. Of the 21 denominations represented in the California 20Council of Churches' membership only two - the United Church of Christ's Northern and Southern 21 California Conference, and the Universal Fellowship of Metropolitan Community Churches – 22 generally accepted marriage of same-sex couples in religious ceremonies in their churches. That the 23 Council's position has been pro-religious freedom, pro-church autonomy, pro-equal protection, and 24 anti-enactment of sectarian dogma concerning marriage cannot change the fact that homosexuals 25 remain a disfavored and persecuted minority.

Though Proposition 8's Proponents suggest that their initiative's demolition of same-sex couples' civil right was designed to protect Californians' religious liberty, quite the opposite is true.
Allowing same-sex couples the right to marry threatens religious liberty of Catholics no more than

Case3:09-cv-02292-VRW Document559 Filed02/03/10 Page7 of 27

1 does allowing civilly divorced citizens to marry in contravention of Catholic doctrine. Allowing 2 same-sex couples to marry no more threatens religious liberty of those who oppose such unions in 3 their churches and synagogues than permitting interfaith marriage threatens the religious liberty of 4 synagogues and rabbis who interpret their scripture and tradition to prohibit such unions. No one 5 can force clergy of any denomination to solemnize any wedding that conflicts with his or her faith tradition, and no church synagogue, or other place of worship loses its tax exempt status for refusing 6 7 religious rites of marriage to citizens possessing a civil right to marry.

8 The real threat to religious liberty comes from enforcing as law religious doctrines of a 9 society's most powerful sects, to outlaw marriages that others both recognize and sanctify. Clergy 10 and congregations of the Unitarian Universalist Association, the Northern and Southern California 11 Conferences of the United Church of Christ, the Universal Fellowship of Metropolitan Community 12 Churches, the Union for Reform Judaism, the Jewish Reconstructionist Federation, and others, 13 proudly solemnized the legal marriages of same-sex couples – until Proposition 8 adopted other sects' doctrine to outlaw those marriages. 14

IDENTITY AND INTEREST OF AMICI

16 The identity and interest of amici are stated in greater detail in their motion for leave to file 17 this brief. As explained there, the Unitarian Universalist Association, Northern California Nevada 18 Conference and Southern California Nevada Conferences of the United Church of Christ, General 19 Synod of the United Church of Christ, and Universal Fellowship of Metropolitan Community 20 Churches, represent faith traditions whose clergy were solemnizing legal marriages for same-sex 21 couples in their California congregations – until Proposition 8 passed. The Pacific Association of 22 Reform Rabbis includes rabbis who solemnized legal marriages for same-sex couples. The 23 Unitarian Universalist Legislative Ministry California (UULM CA), California Faith for Equality, 24 and Progressive Jewish Alliance are faith-based organizations that have engaged in educational work 25 supporting religious freedom and access to civil marriage for same-sex couples. The California 26 Council of Churches' membership comprises more than 4,000 of California's Christian 27 congregations from 21 denominations, including both mainstream and progressive Protestant and 28 Orthodox Christian communities, two of which recognize same-sex marriage in their religious rites.

The Unitarian Universalist Legislative Ministry Action Network, CA PAC and California Council of Churches Church IMPACT together spent less than $63,000 opposing Proposition 8.

4 5

A. Proposition 8 Was Enacted to Codify Religious Attitudes Hostile to Homosexuals and Homosexuality

The Right Reverend John Shelby Spong, emeritus Episcopal Bishop of Newark, has observed that "[t]he first line of defense used by those who want to condemn homosexuality appears now to be the Bible. It is evident in Western society today that major negativity against gay and lesbian people emanates from conservative Christian churches, both Catholic and Protestant."¹ Proposition 8, in fact, both expresses certain religious groups' hostility toward homosexuality and homosexuals, seeking to enforce sectarian doctrine concerning religious rites of marriage.

America's largest and most powerful denominations backed the drive, with Proposition 8, to strip same-sex couples of a fundamental civil right.² The Roman Catholic Church, with more than 67 million U.S. members, is by far America's largest denomination. Joining it in vehement opposition to equal rights for homosexual citizens were many conservative Evangelical churches, including America's largest Protestant denomination, the Southern Baptist Convention, with its more than 16 million members. In common cause with them was the nation's fourth largest denomination, the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, at 5.8 million American members.

Professor Miller testified that California's gays and lesbians cannot be deemed the target of religious bigotry because the California Council of Churches opposed Proposition 8. In fact, the California Council of Churches devoted no resources to opposing Proposition 8, though its affiliated ²⁶ National membership statistics in this paragraph are drawn from the Yearbook of American & Canadian Churches 2008 (Eileen W. Lindner, ed., 2008), prepared for the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the U.S.A. See id. at 10-15.

501(c)4, Church IMPACT, expended roughly $2,500 on a ballot-recommendation mailer covering 1 all twelve November 2008 ballot propositions – including a "No on 8" recommendation.³ 2

3 Professor Miller suggested that the 21 denominations represented in the Council's 4 membership, which he began listing by name, must have both "supported same-sex marriage and 5 opposed Proposition 8." 10 TR 2463(16)-2464(1). But looking to the seven that Miller named, only the General Synod of the United Church of Christ had spoken against Proposition 8. Though clergy 6 7 from several of the 21 denominations represented in the Council's membership offer blessings of 8 same-sex unions, only two – the United Church of Christ (Northern and Southern California 9 Conferences) and the Universal Fellowship of Metropolitan Community Churches – generally 10 recognized same-sex marriages in their religious rites. Far from promoting same-sex marriage, the Council's position is one of neutrality – urging that each tradition be free to choose its own path.⁴ 11 12 The Metropolitan Community Churches happen to be a small denomination of 43,000 13 members, mostly homosexuals. The Southern Baptists' Rev. Jerry Falwell notoriously denounced them as "brute beasts," saying that their Church's "vile and satanic system will one day be utterly 14 annihilated and there'll be a celebration in heaven." Jan G. Lin, What's Wrong With The Christian 15 16 Right 48 (2004). Falwell's Southern Baptist Convention has joined him in decrying homosexual 17 relationships and same-sex marriages as "in every case sinful, impure, degrading, shameful, unnatural, indecent and perverted,"⁵ submitting an amicus brief in this case emphasizing that it 18 19

²⁰ Church IMPACT explained that notwithstanding the "liturgical issues around same-sex marriage, we can be united in supporting civil marriage as a secular right. No church would be 21 forced to conduct a wedding that is contrary to its beliefs, but no church or individual should be barred from the right to marry if they choose to do so." California Council of Churches IMPACT, 22 How Would Jesus Vote? The California Council of Churches IMPACT Recommendations for the 2008 State Ballot Propositions. 23

Joining an amicus brief in the Marriage Cases, the Council declared: "Our commitment to 24 religious liberty for all and equal protection under the law leads us to assert that the State may not rely on the views of particular religious sects as a basis for denying civil marriage licenses to same-25 gender couples." In re Marriage Cases, No. S147999, Brief of the Unitarian Universalist Association of Congregations, et al., at xv-xvi (filed Sept. 26, 2007). 26 speaks as "the largest non-Catholic denomination in the nation."⁶ Its membership comes to many times that of the United Church of Christ and Metropolitan Community Churches combined.

3 The United Church of Christ, whose General Synod opposed Proposition 8, ranks 21st 4 among the nation's 25 largest Christian denominations, with roughly 1.2 million members 5 nationally. That its General Synod and the Metropolitan Community Churches were joined by the 6 Unitarian Universalist Association, claiming fewer than 250,000 members nationally, by the Union 7 for Reform Judaism and Jewish Reconstructionist Federation, as well as by some regional and local 8 organizations, and some individual clergy from larger denominations – even California's Episcopal 9 bishops – shows only that prophetic voices sought to "speak truth to power" on behalf of the 10 oppressed. Raw political power, alas, was not theirs to wield.

Professor Miller's testimony ignores the reality of California's religious and political landscape, where roughly 31% of Californians self-identify as Catholic, while another 18% place themselves within an Evangelical tradition (including the Southern Baptists). The Pew Forum Survey on Religion & Public Life, U.S. Religious Landscape Survey 99-100 (2008). The Metropolitan Community Churches don't register such polls. Just seven-tenths of one percent of Americans identify with the Reform Jewish tradition, and another seven-tenths of one percent with "Unitarians and other liberal faiths." Id. at 5.

Financial contributions from religiously affiliated organizations for and against Proposition 8 demonstrate a real disparity of resources and power.⁷ A Catholic fraternal organization, the Knights of Columbus, contributed $1.4 million from its national headquarters in Connecticut. To this the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops added $200,000, for a total of at least $1.6 million coming from out-of-state Catholic interests. Joining these Catholic institutions were evangelical Protestants and others. James Dobson's groups, Focus on the Family and the Family Research Council, together gave $715,994, with a board member adding another $450,000. The amounts originally reported 1 from the Mormon Church's Utah headquarters, and the $189,903.58 it eventually admitted to giving, 2 3 grossly understate its influence: A June 29, 2008, letter from the Church's First Presidency was read to all congregations, urging Mormons to "do all you can to support the proposed constitutional 4 amendment by donating your means and time,"⁸ and members told the Wall Street Journal that 5 "local church leaders had made highly charged appeals, such as saying that their souls would be in 6 jeopardy if they didn't give."⁹ ProtectMarriage estimates that half of the nearly $40 million raised 7 8 for Proposition 8 came from Mormons, who also constituted 80 to 90 percent of early precinct 9 walkers. Jesse McKinley & Kirk Johnson, Mormons Tipped the Scales in Ban on Gay Marriage, 10 New York Times, Nov. 15, 2008, Sec. A, p.1. "We've spoken out on other issues," said a Church public-affairs director, "[b]ut we don't get involved to the degree we did on this." Id. 11

12 Public records reflect no contributions from liberal and progressive religious institutions of 13 sufficient magnitude to counterbalance the $1.6 million coming from national Catholic organizations, let alone those from fundamentalist Evangelicals and Mormons. The Unitarian 14 Universalist Legislative Ministry and its Action Network, CA PAC, which worked to provide the 15 16 backbone of religious organizing for marriage equality, spent less than $60,000 opposing 17 Proposition 8. Church IMPACT spent less than $3,000 on opposing Proposition 8. Some individual 18 congregations gave to "No on 8." But the public records show that many more socially conservative 19 churches gave, in aggregate, far more.

That Proposition 8's fervent backers sought to enact their sects' religious doctrines as civil law is clear. The Roman Catholic Church had placed itself on record against civil recognition of same-sex unions in a formal pronouncement approved by the Pope on March 28, 2003, and issued by the Vatican on June 3, 2003, saying that giving civil rights to same-sex couples amounts to the "legalization of evil." Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, Considerations Regarding 1 2 Proposals to Give Legal Recognition to Unions between Homosexual Persons §5 at 16 (2003). "In 3 those situations where homosexual unions have been legally recognized or have been given the legal status and rights belonging to marriage," the Vatican said, "clear and emphatic opposition is a duty." 4 5 Id. Characterizing "[1]egal recognition of homosexual unions" as "the approval of deviant behaviour," the Vatican emphasized that that "all Catholics are obliged to oppose the legal 6 7 recognition of homosexual unions," and warned that "[t]o vote in favour" of according full civil 8 rights to homosexuals is "gravely immoral." Id. §11 at 25, & §10 at 23.

9 America's fundamentalist Evangelical churches, including the Southern Baptist Convention 10 have exhibited even greater hostility toward homosexuals and their relationships. In his book Listen America! the Southern Baptist Rev. Jerry Falwell declared: "Homosexuality is Satan's diabolical 11 attack upon the family, God's order in creation." Jerry Falwell, Listen America! 183 (1980). 12 13 Falwell elsewhere asserted that "AIDS is not just God's punishment for homosexuals, it is God's punishment for the society that tolerates homosexuals." Patterson, Hate Thy Neighbor, supra note 1, 14 15 at 10. And Evangelical leader James Dobson, who founded Focus on the Family and the Family 16 Research Counsel, infamously declared:

Homosexuals are not monogamous. They want to destroy the institution of marriage. It will destroy marriage. It will destroy the Earth.

Marriage, family advocate in state to support Coburn, The Oklahoman, Oct. 23, 2004, p. 10A.
 The Southern Baptist Convention ("SBC") has issued a long series of anti-gay resolutions.
 Speaking against "legal, social, and religious acceptance for homosexuality and deviant moral behavior," its June 1977 Resolution on Homosexuality denounced "[t]he radical scheme to subvert the sacred pattern of marriage in America."¹⁰ A June 1980 Resolution on Homosexuality opposed anti-discrimination ordinances and denounced homosexuals" "practices, relations, and perversion."
 A June 1988 Resolution on Homosexuality decried "erosion of moral sanity," declaring homosexuality "a manifestation of a depraved nature," and asserting that homosexuals have 1 "wrought havoc" with "the introduction and spread of AIDS in the United States which has not only 2 3 affected those of the homosexual community, but also many innocent victims." The Resolution said 4 Southern Baptists "deplore homosexuality as a perversion" and "an abomination in the eyes of God." 5 In 1993, the SBC declared that open "homosexuality represents a sign of God's surrendering a society to its perversions." 6 7 The SBC's 1996 Resolution on Homosexual Marriage declared that "homosexual conduct is 8 always a gross abomination for all human beings, both men and women, in all circumstances, 9 without exception." The SBC insisted that permitting same-sex couples to marry is "sinful, impure, 10 degrading, shameful, unnatural, indecent and perverted." It resolved to "clearly and steadfastly oppose the legalization of homosexual marriage," warning that any "action by the government to 11 12 sanction and legitimize homosexual relationships by the legalization of homosexual marriages, is an 13 abominable sin calling for God's swift judgment upon any such society." Southern Baptists, the SBC declared, are committed "to do all they can to resist and oppose the legalization of homosexual 14 15 marriages," since anything "that legalizes homosexual marriage is and must be completely and 16 thoroughly wicked according to God's standards."

The SBC's June 2008 resolution On the California Supreme Court Decision to Allow Same-18 Sex Marriage declared that "[a]ny action giving homosexual unions the legal status of marriage 19 denies the fundamental immorality of homosexual behavior (Leviticus 18:22; Romans 1:26-27; 1 Corinthians 6:9-11)." It endorsed Proposition 8, resolving to "wholeheartedly support" the initiative, 20 21 and urging "all Southern Baptists in the state of California... to exercise their civic and moral duty 22 by working diligently to support and voting to pass this referendum."

23 Efforts of religious groups to place their own sects' anti-homosexual doctrine in civil law 24 drove the "Yes on 8" Campaign from its very inception. The Catholic Church's auxiliary bishop in 25 San Diego, Salvatore Cordileone, reportedly "played an indispensable role in conceiving, funding, 26

- 27
- 28

organizing, and ultimately winning the campaign to pass Proposition 8.^{"11} Bishop Cordileone explained on Catholic Radio International that Catholics and fundamentalist Evangelicals had united against a Satanic power:

- "The ultimate attack of the Evil One is the attack on marriage, And again, the evangelicals, they understand that. They understand this is an attack of the Evil One at the core institution."¹²
- San Diego hotel magnate Douglas Manchester told the New York Times that he financed putting the measure on the ballot because "my Catholic faith and longtime affiliation with the Catholic Church leads me to believe that marriage should be between a man and a woman."¹³ California's most powerful denominations got their way when Proposition 8 passed with

2	Permitting same-sex couples to marry would, they insist, "[r]ender the traditional definition of
3	marriage embraced by millions of Christians, Jewish, and Muslim Americans no longer legally or
4	socially acceptable, thereby probably forcing many of these Americans to choose between being a
5	believer and being a good citizen," and would "[1]ead to new state-imposed restrictions on First
6	Amendment freedoms." Id. at 10(13-16). Proponents' television ads and other materials warned
7	that if same-sex couples may legally marry, ministers who decline to officiate will face legal
8	liability, and their churches will lose their tax-exempt status. None of this was true.
9	Proposition 8 finds no rational basis in concern for anyone's religious liberty. The Marriage
10	Cases opinion itself had carefully specified that
11	affording same-sex couples the opportunity to obtain the designation of marriage will
12	not impinge upon the religious freedom of any religious organization, official, or any other person; no religion will be required to change its religious policies or practices
13	with regard to same-sex couples, and no religious officiant will be required to solemnize a marriage in contravention of his or her religious beliefs.
14	In re Marriage Cases, 43 Cal. 4th 757, 854-55, 76 Cal. Rptr. 3d 683, 183 P. 3d 384 (2008).
15	The First Amendment would in any event preserve every religion's ability to make its own
16	rules concerning its own religious marriages. No state may force any clergy to officiate at any
17	wedding to which he or she objects. In fact, by adopting sectarian religious doctrine, Proposition 8
18	impinges directly upon the religious liberty of members and clergy of the faith traditions whose
19	congregations and clergy have welcomed same-sex couples to enter legal marriages in religious
20	ceremonies. Establishment-clause and free-exercise principles should operate together to prohibit
21	the enactment, as law, of other sects' doctrines to deny legal status to those marriages.
22	Proposition 8's Proponents generally have insisted that marriage is of divine origin -
23	instituted by God. ¹⁵ But California law should be blind to sectarian doctrines on divine law. ¹⁶ Even nonbelievers have a right to marry. That atheists and agnostics enjoy the same legal right to marry as those who revere marriage as a divine institution poses no threat to anyone's religious liberty. No atheist or agnostic couple may force any church or synagogue to open its doors to them. But neither may those who deem marriage a divine institution "protect" their own sectarian religious beliefs and practices by legislating any test of faith, or of religious propriety, to deprive nonbelievers or the unorthodox of the legal right to marry. See Torcaso v. Watkins, 367 U.S. 488 (1961).

7 That people of different faiths may marry one another similarly poses no threat to the 8 religious liberty of the faith traditions and clergy that reject, discourage, or restrict interfaith 9 marriages. For most of the twentieth century, Roman Catholics' Code of Canon Law proscribed interfaith marriages.¹⁷ Dramatically liberalized in 1983, Catholic doctrine still restricts interfaith 10 marriage by requiring the Church's "express permission" for a Catholic to marry a non-Catholic 11 12 Christian, and "an express dispensation" for a Catholic to marry a non-Christian. Catechism of the 13 Catholic Church, supra note 15, ¶1635. Yet the Church and its priests have never faced legal liability for refusing marriage rites to mixed-faith couples, and the religious liberty of California's 14 Catholics by no means requires, nor could it justify, the state's legal enforcement of their Church's 15 rules regulating mixed-faith marriages. 16

1997). That Church's top doctrinal body insists that marriage "was established by the Creator." Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, Considerations Regarding Proposals to give Legal Recognition to Unions between Homosexual Persons, §2 at 11 (2003). The Mormon Church First Presidency's June 28 letter to all California congregations, supra note 8, was similarly grounded in an assertion that "[m]arriage between a man and a woman is ordained of God."

- ¹⁶ "From its inception, California law has treated the legal institution of civil marriage as distinct from religious marriage." Marriage Cases, 43 Cal. 4th at 792 n.11. The Family Code provides: "No contract of marriage, if otherwise duly made, shall be invalidated for want of conformity to the requirements of any sect." Calif. Family Code. §420(b).
- ¹⁷ Michael G. Lawler, Interchurch Marriages: Theological and Pastoral Reflections, in Marriage in the Catholic Tradition: Scripture, Tradition, and Experience Ch. 22, 222 (Todd A. Salzman, et al., eds., 2004) (quoting Canon 1060 of the 1917 Code of Canon Law: "The church everywhere most severely prohibits the marriage between two baptized persons, one of whom is Catholic, the other of whom belongs to a heretical or schismatic sect.").

In Judaism, the Orthodox and Conservative Movements prohibit interfaith marriages.¹⁸ The Rabbinic tradition proscribing mixed-faith marriage is grounded in Scripture.¹⁹ Yet California's Jews do not think their religious liberty needs the protection of state laws barring civil marriage of interfaith couples. That California permits mixed-faith marriages by no means forces California's Jews "to choose between being a believer and being a good citizen," as Proponents put it.
 Defendants-Intervenors' Trial Mem. at 10(14-15).

7 Islamic law is widely understood to bar interfaith marriages between a Muslim woman and non-Muslim man, and also to prohibit marriage of any Muslim to a polytheist or pagan.²⁰ Some 8 nations strive to defend the Muslim faith by incorporating these rules in their civil law.²¹ But the 9 10 religious liberty of California's Muslims could not justify California's adoption of similar rules, which the Ninth Circuit holds amount to religious persecution if backed by governmental power.²² 11 12 Under California law, a legally divorced man or woman may marry again. This poses no 13 threat to the liberty of Roman Catholics, whose Church both pronounces divorce "a grave offense 14 against the natural law," and condemns remarriage by, or to, a divorced person as "public and 15 permanent adultery." Catechism of the Catholic Church, supra, ¶2384. The Roman Catholic Church insists that divorced people who remarry necessarily "find themselves in a situation that 16

 F.3d 292, 293 (2d Cir. 2006) (noting that an interfaith Jewish-Muslim marriage "violates Iranian law and Muslim law (Shariah)").

objectively contravenes God's law." Id. at ¶1650. The Church accordingly "cannot recognize the union of people who are civilly divorced and remarried."²³ Those who divorce and remarry "cannot receive sacramental absolution, take Holy Communion, or exercise certain ecclesial responsibilities as long as their situation, which objectively contravenes God's law, persists."²⁴

Neither may they sue the Church for enforcing these rules. No one may compel a Catholic priest either to solemnize a wedding at odds with his Church's doctrine, or to give communion to those whom the civil law recognizes as legally divorced and remarried. No Catholic Church has lost its tax-exempt status for denying anyone its religious rites of marriage and communion. The civil right of the civilly divorced to remarry poses no threat to the religious liberty of Catholics.

Recognizing same-sex couples' legal right to marry threatens religious liberty of those who reject such marriages no more than recognizing the legal right of mixed-race couples in Perez v. Sharp, 32 Cal. 2d 711, 198 P.2d 17 (1948), and in Loving v. Virginia, 388 U.S. 1 (1967), could impair the religious liberty of those who reject interracial unions as contrary to God's law.

The Mormon Church for most of its history – indeed, until June of 1978 – both barred blacks from its priesthood, and condemned interracial marriage.²⁵ Its doctrine was controversial, but no one could force the Church to let black men enter its priesthood, and no interracial couple could insist upon being married in a Mormon temple. The Church faced no legal liability, and suffered no loss of its tax-exempt status, for refusing Mormon rites of marriage to mixed-race couples.

Bush, Jr., Mormonism's Negro Doctrine: An Historical Overview, in Neither White nor Black: Mormon Scholars Confront the Race Issue in a Universal Church 53-129 (Lester E. Bush, Jr. & Armand L. Mauss, eds., 1984).
- 28

The Mormon Church itself observed, at the time, that "matters of faith, conscience, and theology are not within the purview of the civil law."²⁶ Church doctrine "affecting those of the Negro race who choose to join the church falls wholly within the category of religion," the First Presidency declared in 1969, and "has no bearing upon matters of civil rights." The Church quite clearly was protected by the First Amendment when it limited marriage on the basis of race – even if it could no longer impose its religious doctrine on others as civil law.

Allowing mixed-race couples to marry outside the Mormon Church thus presented no threat to Mormons' religious liberty to prohibit interracial marriages within their Church. Allowing samesex couples to marry outside the Mormon Church similarly poses no threat to Mormons' religious liberty. Any law purporting to protect Mormons' "religious liberty" by banning either mixed-race marriages or same-sex marriages must be deemed utterly irrational.

12 The religious liberty of Proposition 8's Proponents is not enhanced or protected by placing 13 their own faith traditions' doctrinal restrictions in California's constitution – unless "religious liberty" means freedom to force others to follow your own religious rules. It clearly does not. Our 14 15 "law knows no heresy, and is committed to the support of no dogma, the establishment of no sect.²⁷ Under our Constitution, "government may not promote or affiliate itself with any religious 16 doctrine."²⁸ Thus, the Supreme Court readily invalidates state laws barring the teaching of 17 18 Darwinian evolution or requiring instruction of "creation science," because they seek to codify conservatives' religious doctrine.²⁹ It properly keeps religious doctrine out of our public schools. 19 See, e.g., Lee v. Weisman, 505 U.S. 577, 618-19 (1992); Epperson, 393 U.S. at 108-09. The State 20

cannot constitutionally choose to impose the traditions of one religion on members of another; it 1 cannot say what is kosher, or holy, or ordained by God.³⁰ 2

Perez v. Sharp starkly frames the religious-liberty issue. When California law prohibited a 3 mixed-race marriage of two Catholics, whose Church blessed matrimony between believers of 4 5 different races, the mixed-race couple argued "that the statutes in question are unconstitutional on the grounds that they prohibit the free exercise of their religion and deny to them the right to 6 participate fully in the sacraments of that religion." 32 Cal. 2d at 713. Justice Traynor wrote for a 7 8 plurality of three justices that if "the law is discriminatory and irrational, it unconstitutionally 9 restricts not only religious liberty but the liberty to marry as well." Id. at 713-14. Justice Edmonds 10 provided the fourth vote, making a precedential majority, by agreeing that a couple's right to marry "is protected by the constitutional guarantee of religious freedom." Id. at 740 (Edmonds, J., 11 concurring). Outlawing a marriage between two Catholics of different races, because others thought 12 13 God intended the races to remain apart, violated Catholics' religious freedom. See id.

14 Surely, Unitarian Universalists, members of the United Church of Christ and Metropolitan Community Churches, Reform Jews, Reconstructionist Jews, and others whose faith traditions bless 15 16 marital unions without regard to the contracting parties' race or sex, are entitled to the same religious 17 liberty as Catholics. Proposition 8 deprives them of that liberty.

CONCLUSION 18 IV.

19 Proposition 8 amounts to an unconstitutional codification of hostility toward, and sectarian 20 doctrine concerning, homosexuality and homosexuals. It should be stricken.
